We, the Representatives from State Planning Organizations, assembled in Naya Raipur on 22nd November 2016 to support and strengthen state planning bodies at all levels, to discuss and coordinate areas of mutual interest and develop framework for future cooperation in the field of planning process.

We recognize that planning continues to play a critical role in a rapidly evolving national and global context - and State Planning Organizations must be equipped with intellectual, financial and support services to serve as the governments' think tanks to help societies to deal with the opportunities and crises that may arise in future.

We are tasked with designing strategic and long term policy and programme frameworks and initiatives . at multi-levels of the programme cycle . planning, budgeting, implementation and monitoring . and a continuous feedback loop.

Evidence-based research and advocacy are important think-tank functions, and we are expected to provide advice and encourage partnerships between key stakeholders and think-tanks. We partner with experts, practitioners and others to create a knowledge, innovation and entrepreneurial support system, promote convergence across sectors and departments and maintain repository of research on good governance and best practices.

We welcome the global and national consensus to achieve SDGs by the year 2030. These goals require converged planning and efforts by concerned Departments of the Government. State Planning organizations can assist to shape and update thinking of internal and external agencies engaged in SDGs implementation framework.

The conclave proposes advocacy for institutional reforms for building SPOs as knowledge institutions of excellence and creating platform network among SPOs and NITI Aayog to encourage open access to best and replicable practices of policy making
